Relief Association Organized to Stay
Fatal Effects of Spreading Famine —Craters Still Smoking.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Tokio, Japan, Jan. 17.—An indication that the loss of life on the island of Sakurajima, which was reported by the eruption of the volcano Sakurajima, may be much larger than had been supposed, is given in a report given here from an official of the interior department, who was sent to Kagoshima and its vicinity to investigate the disaster.

Other refugees, it is expected, will be found in the south directions, but the loss of life evidently was extremely heavy.

Measures for the relief of the sufferers from famine in the north and eruptions in the south rapidly assuming shape, now that the extent of the disaster is more definitely known.

Start Relief Work.

A relief association, national in scope, has been organized here and has issued the following appeal for help:

"Heaven has brought us disasters, one after another. While the sufferings from famine in the north and eruptions in the south have been relieved, another calamity has occurred in Kishin.

The northeast, poorly favored by nature, sustained many afflictions in the past and is now suffering a great calamity and its people are eating only wild fruits and herbs to stay their hunger. Snow covers the land, adding to the suffering.

Buried in Lava.

"We were planning to relieve their distress when news came of the eruption in the south with people buried in lava or so scorched with fire that they could not live and were killed by their nearest relatives. No greater calamity can be imagined."

The statement ended with an appeal to sympathizers for donations.

Hunger Causes Death.

Bishop Wada, of the English church in Hokkaido, the famine stricken district writes that the suffering everywhere is intense. The farmers, he says, are hit hardest and are eating soup made of water and chopped straw, leaves and rotten potatoes, and meat taken from cats, dogs and fish. The more fortunate have a thin gruel made of rice and water.

Their results, he writes, are many deaths from the cold and starvation and an increase of crime and beggars. Many girls, he declares, have been sold into slavery. He says that many children are dying in schools, sick from lack of food.

Covered With Lava.

The investigator of the department of the interior who visited the government of the island of Sakurajima, reports that he saw pumice stones three and five feet in diameter that had been thrown from the lower part of the volcano. Lava mounds are forty feet high.

Members of a party rescued from a cave recounted how they saved themselves from being roasted alive by holding thick boards on their heads. Japanese umbrellas having shriveled a few minutes after their frightful fight began. They were in the cave for three days and nights. They had not had food, but found some drinking water.

Investigate Change.

Kagoshima, Japan, Jan. 17.—Prof. Omori, the Japanese seismologist, who arrived here yesterday, circled the island of Sakurajima today and found a pronounced physical change. Huge molten rocks formed a range and sea, practically blocking the bay across to Osumi. Many dwellings remain in perfect condition on the northern coast, but on the devastated eastern coast, ash and lava have reached to the eaves of the houses.

Many new hills have sprung into existence.

Woman Insane.

The professor saw a woman on the shore, but when he went to her she fled into the interior. She was undoubtedly insane. Horses, cattle, dogs and cats swarmed in the vicinity of one damaged house he saw.

Craters Still Alive.

The new craters formed on Sakurajima are still pouring volumes of smoke in the direction of Osumi. About seven-tenths of the remaining island is in such a hopeless condition that it must be abandoned.

Fifteen hundred of the two thousand houses on the island were burned. The estimated damage on this account is ten million yen (five million dollars). How to deal with the islanders is the great problem, the professor says, but evidently they must migrate.

Active for a Month.

Prof. Omori thinks the entire volcanic range of Kishin has entered upon a period of activity that recurs every sixty years and that eruptions may be expected at any time, especially from the volcano Unzen, eight miles from Obima in the Prefecture of Nagasaki.

The geologist, Okada, is of the opinion that Sakurajima will continue in eruption for a month.

Saved by Sailors.

Blue jackets from the native craft fleet today discovered the native craft containing sixteen refugees from Sakurajima who were in a starving condition. They reported that owing to the floating masses of pumice stone and the high seas they have been unable to steer their boat and had spent three days at the mercy of the elements and without a morsel of food. The blue jackets were able to reach them only by using the wedge shaped raft with which they pierced a field of pumice stone resembling ice floes.

Filling Up Sea.

Lava today was flowing steadily down the sides of the volcano and sea, increasing in volume as it solidified on reached the water. It is still impossible to give anything like an approximate estimate of the number of victims from the disaster. Some officials here express the hope that almost all escaped from Sakurajima. Others are less optimistic.

Mail Undelivered.

Prof. Omori, the seismologist, pointing today to the village of Yokohama in Sakurajima, where 400 houses he buried in lava said: "Are the people bur-led ther as in Pompeii" and answered simply: "Only the ruins can reply. Many refugees are reported to have been driven insane as a result of terror and exposure. Over a million letters and eight thousand telegrams are lying in Kagoshima, awaiting delivery."

Fresh Outbreaks.

Kagoshima, Jan. 17.—The further violent eruptions of the volcano Sakurajima, accompanied by a severe earthquake, occurred late last night, causing the collapse of many more buildings. Numbers of the inhabitants of Kagoshima, who had returned, fled again in terror from the city. Ashes are falling thickly today.

The sun sun looked like a ball of blood over Kagoshima today, but it gave a night and the darkness was such that night signs had to be employed on the railroads. The flying dust was so thick that the few pedestrians on the streets, making their way to the outskirts of the city, had to cover their mouths and noses with towels and handkerchiefs to prevent suffocation.

The waters of the gulf of Kagoshima seemed to be boiling and the quantity of floating pumice stone was so great that it prevented navigation.

Americans Contributing.

Tokio, Japan, Jan. 17.—Messages of sympathy with Japan in connection with the recent disaster in the south have been coming from all over the world and especially from America and England. Both President Wilson and Secretary of State Bryan have sent dispatches.

Contributions for relief have been made by the American Red Cross and the naval society.

English Graft Suit

INTERESTING CASE

Eight English British Army Officers and Eight Civilians Are Brought Up In Court Today.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, Jan. 17.—For many years no suit has aroused such widespread interest in the British Isles as the proceedings opened today at Bow Street police court against eight officers of the British army and eight civilians charged with wholesale graft in connection with purchases for the army "canteens."

"Thirteen of the accused men appeared when the magistrate called the case today. Two of the officers failed to answer the summons, while one of the civilians was absent on account of illness.

Six commissioned officers and two non-commissioned officers are involved in the case. They are connected with the quartermaster's department of the war office. All the officers have risen from the ranks. The eight civilians are all employed by Lipton Ltd., which is charged with the managing of the canteens. They include John Cansfield, general manager and director of the company; James Craig, general manager of the military department of the company; and three former and present managers of the company at the military headquarters in Ireland and at Aldershot and at Salisbury Plain.

According to the opening speech of the prosecuting counsel, bribery and corruption have been going on for upwards of ten years and it may be necessary to add other names to the list of those accused here. At the same time several officers are being dealt with by military tribunals."

Income Assessor Wins Enmity of County Board Which Asks for His Removal.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Jan. 17.—Charges are before the tax commission reflecting upon the efficiency of Income Assessor Bayfield, Landraint of Bayfield, Wis., who has been in the position for some time.

Chairman N. P. Haueh and Commissioner Thomas E. Lyons have gone to Washburn to hold a session in the matter today. Bayfield was passed by the tax commission at the last session and the city council of Washburn followed it up by passing a resolution of censure. The resolution was passed by a vote of 9 to 1.

The county board of Bayfield is of the opinion that Landraint's conduct in his official capacity has been "uniformly arrogant, arbitrary, overbearing and insolent."

GERMAN VESSEL LOST

WITH HUNDRED LIVES

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Hamburg, Germany, Jan. 17.—No doubt remains that the German steamer Adria is lost with its crew of 48 and 50 passengers. A message from Punta Arenas, Chile, says that the bodies of two of her officers were picked up today among a mass of wreckage in Moat Channel, north of Picton Island, Tierra del Fuego.

The bodies were found some time ago. The Adria was a vessel of 3,600 tons, built in 1900 and chartered by the Cosmos line. She left Corral, Chile, October 27, for Hamburg.

A telegram from Valparaiso on Wednesday last reported the finding of two of the Adria's boats in Agulre bay, Tierra del Fuego, with the bodies of her second mate and two seamen.

VICE BOARD BLAMES
PUBLIC DANCE HALLS

Sheboygan Girls Testify Employers Paying Satisfactory Wages But Blame It Dance Halls for Standards.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Sheboygan, Jan. 7.—"The dance halls are the worst thing we find to contend with in Sheboygan," said Senator Howard Teasdale, chairman of the legislative vice committee, this morning, after the first day of the hearings on the bill to regulate the dance halls.

The committee, which was organized to investigate the conditions of the dance halls, held its first session this morning in executive session and without exception all said that the conditions in regard to their moral surroundings, the treatment and accommodations of the girls, the wages and the standards of the dance halls were entirely satisfactory, and we learned that many of them are paying an income tax. On account of public criticism we did not question them about morality.

It was said by City Attorney Edward Voigt that an ordinance which is now pending before the city council and will be placed on its final passage before the city council, will provide that among other provisions will be revoked if immodest dances and immoral conduct is permitted or the city law is violated. It is believed this will remove all evils.

This morning an executive session was held when members of women's clubs and associated charities were examined.

The local investigation will close this afternoon with the examination of city officials, police, etc., and no more sessions will be held for several weeks. Senator Teasdale said the members of the committee will work as they are getting nothing for these investigations. He said: "You know we have to live, and it cost me $300 to get this $500 job."

Protest Statement.

Superior, Jan. 17.—As a result of the statement that vice reigns supreme in Superior, which Senator Howard Teasdale of the state vice commission is quoted as having made at Sheboygan yesterday, a protest will be made to Gov. McGovern by a representative Superior committee. In a statement made today by City Attorney H. V. Card, Chairman Teasdale is charged with prejudice and a league with the political element now attempting the recall of Mayor J. S. Konkell.

"Senator Teasdale's attitude during the vice hearing here and his statement that vice reigns supreme in Superior is a rank fanatic," said Mr. Card. "A court or judge who would show the prejudice that he displayed in presiding at the inquiry would be impeached and he would be called to account for going out of his way to malign the city of Superior."

City of Milwaukee Appeals to Supreme Court, Protesting on Death of Street Laborers.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Jan. 17.—That Minnie Althoff of Milwaukee should be paid the award of $2,138.11 directed by the state industrial commission against the city of Milwaukee was argued by Assistant Attorney General Byron H. Stebbins in the supreme court today. The brief of the city of Milwaukee was filed by City Attorney James H. Quinn.

In the case, Althoff's father was not doing work for the city when killed. August Althoff, a street laborer of the city of Milwaukee, was killed by a street car on May 1, 1912. Althoff reported to the board of supervisors early in the morning and was sent to help unload paving brick at a different part of the city. On his way Althoff was killed by a street car.

The industrial commission directed the award in favor of his ten year old daughter, Minnie.

Althoff claims that Althoff was not actually at work at the time of the injury within the meaning of the compensation act and that the industrial commission was sustained by Judge E. Ray Stevens of the circuit court and the city of Milwaukee appealed.

WITH LABOR HEADS

Effort May Be Made By Authorities to Extradite Moyer on Conspiracy Charge—Twenty-Nine Arrested.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Houghton, Jan. 17.—An effort may be made by Houghton county officials to extradite Charles F. Moyer, president of the Western Federation of Miners and other indicted union leaders to stand trial for conspiracy.

Special Prosecutor Nichols declared today that he was deliberating whether or not to charge Moyer with conspiracy. Under the laws of Michigan a conspiracy is a misdemeanor because it is punishable by a sentence in the county jail. The maximum sentence is two years in jail and a maximum fine of $2,000. On the other hand, the statutes provide 90 days as the maximum jail sentence for a misdemeanor.

The special prosecutor is not certain that an offense punishable by a longer term than thirty days is not extraditable.

Twenty-nine of the thirty-eight men indicted by the special grand jury had been arrested this morning.

San Francisco, Calif., Jan. 17.—A woman known as Elanche Wood, 24 years old, seized a revolver and shot herself dead early this morning at a hotel here in the presence of her uncle, A. B. Wood, and a friend, Edward Roberts. Wood was attempting to dissuade Wood from committing suicide. Wood then took the weapon and killed himself. Wood recently came from Tennessee. His niece was a short story writer.

Earlier in the evening Wood, who had made several suicidal threats, had left a note to his niece in which he said he would take his life.

Wood had been to a picture show with Roberts. Roberts left him at Wood's hotel and went to his own hotel where he found Miss Wood in a state of hysteria. She had found the note from her uncle saying that he had decided to kill himself and she had tried to stop him by taking his gun.

The new station in the federal capital is to make only half a sending range usually provided for and this is taken here as an indication that General Huerta is preparing for fighting in the neighborhood of the federal capital.

ENGLAND IS STRONG FOR INTERNATIONAL CONTEST IN AMERICA

Oxford Quartet of Sprinters Has Good Chance of Turning Tide Against Americans in Pennsylvania Meet.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
New York, Jan. 17.—England's chances of defeating America in the first international contest of 1914 will be unusually good, when the Oxford University four-mile relay team competes at the University of Pennsylvania meet at Franklin Field, April 29. According to the present plan the Oxford quartet will consist of four runners who will run in four minutes, each for one mile. The team, as a whole, are not considered as a team, are not equalled in the college world today. Arnold N. S. Jackson, winner of the 1,500 meter race at the Olympic games of 1912, will captain the team. His first lieutenant will be Norman Tabor, Rhodes scholar from Brown University, winner of the 1913 A. A. U. mile championship and a number of American intercollegiate titles. G. M. Sproule, captain of the Oxford cross country team and Rhodes scholar from Australia, will be third man, while Basil Rudd of South Africa, also a holder of a Rhodes scholarship, will complete the team.

It thus happens that by a peculiar coincidence Oxford has a quartet of mile runners drawn from the four corners of the world, every one of whom has run the mile in four minutes twenty seconds or better. All have figured prominently in the fall sports of the English university and because of their varied experience in national and international competition will form a most formidable team, both from the point of time and steadiness. Jackson and Tabor have repeatedly run a mile between 4.14 and 4.20, and are excellent judges of pace and spurt. Rudd was originally a one-half mile, with a record of 1.56, but has shown the speed and endurance necessary for the mile in the longer trials. Sproule is a long distance winner, who has run the mile in 4.14, and he possesses a burst of speed at the finish that makes him appear like a sprinter in the final one hundred yards. On a fast, dry track this team, according to English experts, should be able to run the four mile without heart-breaking effort inside seventeen minutes thirty seconds. Judging from the past records of the men they should be able to cut fifteen seconds off these figures if the hard.

Hard to choose.
With John Paul Jones graduated and retired from the cinder path it would be hard to select a team of runners from among all the colleges of the United States whose records would warrant their being even favorites against this marvelous quartet now matriculated at Oxford. If any one college or university in the United States has at this time four runners ready to test the Oxford team to the limit the average college trainer is unaware of the existence of the team. Yet these are the conditions which must be complied with at the University of Pennsylvania relay carnivals. Unless Cornell, Pennsylvania or Michigan, the home of long distance college runners, can develop a sensational four for this international contest the odds will be long on Oxford late in April. Even the best American records for similar racing exceed 17.30. The Boston A. A. team hold the A. A. U. record of 17.51-1.5 made at Easton, Pa., on June 13, 1913, while the intercollegiate record of 17.55 was made by Cornell team of 1911 at the Pennsylvania relays.

The Pennsylvania team won the race last year in 18 minutes and 2.5 seconds, defeating Princeton, Ohio State, Pennsylvania State and Northwestern University in the order named. The Red and Blue team consisted of Laugher, McCurdy, Madeira and Gutierrez. Of the quartet all are eligible except Gutierrez, who was graduated last spring. In order to run the four miles in anything like 17.30 new material will have to be uncovered. Some idea of the caliber of this task may be gained from the statement that a team selected from among the winners of the mile runs in all the intercollegiate meets of 1913, barring Jones and Tabor, would fail to show average time equal to that credited to the Oxford quartet.

Give Lapel Badge.
Members of the University of Pennsylvania varsity club confined to athletes who have won this letter, will hand out a special lapel badge. Six designs have been adopted. The football lapel shows a gridiron; baseball, a diamond; track and field an oval; rowing, reversed oars, and allied sports a checkered flag.

Harvard is Champion.
In the nineteen major and minor outdoor and indoor sports regattas by the eastern colleges as intercollegiate contests for the season of 1912-13 Harvard leads in championships won with seven firsts and one second. Yale is second with four firsts and four second. Cornell third with two firsts and four seconds.

Old Rowing Barge.
The Oxford University Boat Club has regained possession of the rowing barge in which the Oxford crew of 1829 rowed and won the first intervarsity race against Cambridge University on the Thames river near London on June 10, 1829. The boat, which is 45 feet long and 10 feet wide at the middle, is constructed of nine streaks of lap boards, a keel and a gunwale. A long plank runs the length of the center of the boat, and the thwart is supported by a heavy upright iron stays. The heavier material is spruce, the smaller ribs ash, and the main timbers oak. The thwart pins are narrow and the oarsmen sat at the extreme opposite end of the boat in rowing.

The boat was used for a number of succeeding races, and some ten years later was stored in an old boat-house at Oxford as a relic for the future. In 1841 Sir Robert Menzies, then a student and oarsman at Oxford, purchased the boat and had it shipped to Loch Rannoch. There the historic grandfather of all racing shells remained until his death, when it was sold with other relics of Castle Menzies. Thus after seventy years the primitive racing craft has returned to the scene of its earlier triumphs and history making.

leagues and it was in 1901 that he first began managing the Athletics. The first season Mack managed the Athletics they landed fourth in the pennant race, but the season following—1902—he led them to their first championship. Of the men with the team at that time Dan Murphy, Eddie Plank and Harry Davis are still with him. In 1902 the Athletics finished second; in 1904 they dropped to fifth place; in 1905 they won the title but lost the world series to New York. In 1906 they finished second to the Sox. In 1907 they finished second again, this time after a bitter struggle with the Tigers. In 1908 they dropped to sixth place, and the year following they were nosed out from the pennant again by the Tigers. In 1910 the Athletics made a great stir throughout the land, winning the pennant and then the world's title from the Cubs. In 1911 they repeated the whole stunt, beating the Cubs to the world's championship, and in 1912 they got away to a bad start and slipped down to third. However, in 1913, the season just past, we have all seen what they did and would be folly to mention it. It is clear from a glance at the dope that Connie Mack has earned his wages as manager of the Athletics.

Baseball players are much like prima donnas. They are exceedingly temperamental. Those who have had charge of a squad of ball players have discovered that every effort must be made to see that nothing occurs to annoy or fret them and that their mode of life be as serene and undisturbed as possible. Consider this world tour of the Giants and White Sox. Veteran trainers have observed that in some respects a journey of this sort will not have very beneficial effect on the players. This is especially true since there is so much water for them to cover while circling the globe. It isn't well for a player to see too much water. Their highly strung temperaments are disturbed by the sight of it. They will all probably return on Neighbors and Osborn Win Five Games from Kueck and Heise, Totaling 189 Pins at Finish.

Gaining an early lead which they increased every game, Neighbors and Osborn, champion ten pin men in Janesville defeated Kueck and Heise of the Gazette by 189 pins, in their duel at Miller's alley last night. Neighbors rolled a consistent game, finishing with an average of 180. Osborn, in the third game, knocked down a total of 207 pins, winning him the position of high man. Kueck, of the losers, was in bad form during the first three games, but bettered 160 in his last two attempts. Heise started strong but was unable to keep the place in the last stretch. The winners have been challenged by the Lee brothers and local fans are expecting to witness an exciting tilt when these stars mix.

FIGHT FANS BACK WILLARD IN TRIAL

Opponents of Prize-Fighting Attempting to Kill Game in Trial of Jess Willard and Promoter.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Los Angeles, Jan. 17.—The lift of the fight game in California was at stake today when Jess Willard, Tom Carey, the fight promoter, and other opponents of prize fighting, were on trial on charges of violating the California anti-prize fight law. The charges against the defendants grew out of the death last August of John "Bull" Young, who is declared to have received his fatal injuries in a fight with Willard. When arraigned all the defendants pleaded not guilty but they were held for trial. All then filed demurrers through their attorneys and Superior Court Judge Craig overruled them, declaring that any ring contest "in which the incentive is to win through a knock-out rather than through boxing" is a prize-fight.

HOSPITALS AND INSTITUTIONS Use Peruna for Coughs, Colds - Grip

With the approach of winter colds and grip are prevalent. Both of these need to be treated at once, to prevent them from becoming very serious. It is interesting to learn in this connection that numerous charity hospitals are using Peruna. Peruna seems to be successful in their hands in the treatment of colds, cough, grip and dyspepsia, and in all other cases where a reliable tonic laxative is required.

A Prominent Charity Hospital in Quebec Writes as Follows:
"Although we have used Peruna for only three or four weeks, we are happy to state that it has been with excellent results. Several persons suffering from dyspepsia and constipation have been benefited by its use."

A Later Letter States:
"We are pleased to say that we have found Peruna a very good and useful remedy in several cases, and we are happy to recommend it to others."

Another Canadian Hospital Writes:
"We have been using your Peruna during the past month and we take pleasure in stating that the results obtained thus far are most satisfactory." A later letter states: "We have used your remedy in a number of different cases and the result obtained is very good."

Convent Uses Peruna for Grip.
A prominent Montreal, Province Quebec, convent writes: "Some of our Sisters have used Peruna with happy results. It is especially good as a tonic after la grippe, or a severe cold."

A Well Known Institution in Quebec has Found Peruna Useful in Indigestion and Debility.
"We have given your valuable medicine, Peruna, a fair trial, and it has given general satisfaction to our patients suffering from weak digestion, debility and nervous headache."

and not a boxing contest. Opponents of prize-fighting in California have pounced upon the present trial as a means of killing the fight game entirely in California, and many church and religious organizations are giving moral backing to the state's case. Fight lovers are behind the defense, boxing promoters having resolved to put up a bitter fight to save the game.

JANESVILLE TEAM DEFEATS PALMYRA

Janesville's original Nose Out Victory from Palmyra Five Last Night.

Star playing by Wilson and close guarding by Brown and Blunk resulted in the defeat of the Palmyra Buicks who have a long list of victories to their credit, when the Cardinals clashed with the Buicks at Palmyra last night, by a 24 to 21 score. The home five tied the score in the second half, but a horseshoe shot by Wilson put the Janesville team to the front.

On the opening of the game Thayer, center for Palmyra, helped Janesville to a victory by tossing a basket for the locals, being bewildered by the speed of Falter, who lead the opposing team in a merry chase around the court. Janesville outclassed their rivals in this period and when the whistle blew were leading a 14 to 8 score. In the second half Palmyra came back strong and star work by Blunk put them even with the Cards. Wilson increased the lead by two tied goals and three fouls, making a record of seven field goals during the combat.

Summary.
Palmyra—Thayer, 0 and 1; Ganzig, 6; Norstrom, 1 and 0; Cleland, 8; Heldt, 0; Jones, 0.
Janesville—Wilson and Cook, 1; Falter, 0; Brown and Blunk, 0.
Baskets—Wilson 7, Ganzig 3, Norstrom 3, Thayer 2, Cleland, Jones, Cook, Falter and Blunk 1.

An Extraordinary Tragedy.
An extraordinary tragedy of superstition is reported from Burdwan, where a man named Vahamidan murdered his wife with her own consent in the course of a secret ceremonial. Vahamidan had for some time been learning the principles of Tantric worship from a monk. To complete his studies he needed a dead body, and on his assurance that he would restore her to life when he had finished his worship, the wife consented to be killed. The man is now in the hands of the police.

HIGHS ARE LOSERS TO FREEPORT FIVE IN POOR EXHIBITION

Janesville Aspirants Are Handicapped by Slippery Floor and Tack. Short End of 26 to 22.

The fact that the Wisconsin style of basketball was not used, and in its place was used the strict A. A. U. rules, and on a slippery dance floor, form in part the reasons for the defeat of the champion Janesville high school quintet at Freeport last evening. The final count was 26 to 22. Janesville outclassed the Sucker City five in team work and in all around playing. It is not the right attitude for a losing team to take, however, to think that they were robbed of a victory, but the prevailing conditions stood out so prominently that no other conception of the situation could be noticeable.

Coach Curtis remarked after the game to Coach Dougherty of the Freeporters, "The game was uninteresting. The referee you obtained was square, as far as the rules are concerned, but his jurisdiction coupled with your influence, gave your five the victory. I shall only be too glad to give you a return contest, either on our floor, or on a neutral floor. Coach Dougherty refused to even consider a return game."

At the start of the contest Atwood for Janesville began his usual spurs. The referee you obtained was square, as far as the rules are concerned, but his jurisdiction coupled with your influence, gave your five the victory. I shall only be too glad to give you a return contest, either on our floor, or on a neutral floor. Coach Dougherty refused to even consider a return game."

Atwood was a marvel all game. He showed signs of speed for the coming season. Free Throws—Hemming 11, Guhl 4, Hill 5.
Time of Halves—20 minutes.
Referee—Clarence Jones, Joliet, Ill.
Timekeeper—Ferguson.

Capt. Hemming was able to count but one field goal, although he caged three during the conflict. One of the other two was objected to by Coach Dougherty, after the referee had given the count to the locals. He objected on the grounds that Hemming had caught the ball on the jump, which rule is all right, but it should have been the jurisdiction of the referee to settle the matter. Coach Curtis let the matter drop, thus saving any arguments.

There was no feature playing. Both sides resorted to throwing fouls, twenty-four being called on Janesville and fifteen on Freeport. Hemming threw eleven out of fifteen throws, which is remarkable. All the Freeport men took chances at caging the free shots, and between the five of them they managed to count nine out of twenty-five trials. Each five was awarded a gift in the last half when two of the players got into an argument.

At the end of the first half the score stood 13 to 12 in favor of Freeport. Janesville won the second half by a count of 10 to 7.

The score is as follows, with the lineups:
Janesville—Atwood, 1; Dalton, 1; Capt. Hemming, 0; Rau and Stickney, 1; Stewart, 0.
Freeport—M. Guhl, 1; Hill and Koehler, 1; Hart, 0; Capt. Brotn, 1; Fisher, 0.

Queer English Duty.
Americans will be interested to know that from 1660 it has been customary to take a duty as one of the hereditary customs of the crown. In 1660 there was a duty of eight pence a gallon on all the tea liquor sold in all coffee houses—a great inconvenience to tea drinkers, because it was surveyed only twice a day by the excise officers, and so could only be brewed twice a day.—London Mail.

Surgical Operation.
The customer raised his hand, and the barber, pausing in the operation of shaving him, inclined his head. "Sir?" "Give me gas," said the customer.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

There are two little demons we have to combat. And their names are Worry and Hurry. They play the deuce with our nerves and all that. But still we keep on with our flurry. We hurry through breakfast, then off like a shot. We worry through work till the end of the day. We hurry through dinner, after which, like a shot, we hurry again to be off to a "play." We hurry the baby as fast as we can. Kindergarten and high school and college, you bet. Are raced through in our hurry to make him a man. Till his brain is a jumble, his nerves all upset.

Then we wonder why half of the world's inefficient. As we rampage along in our flurry. I am sure this very good reason's sufficient. It is due to our Worry and Hurry. Do you think after all, it is worth what we pay. In nervous prostration and numberless ills? Why can't we take time to live, day by day. For truly and surely, it's hurry that kills. —The Nautilus.

The old building known as No. 26, down at the lower end of Manhattan Island, in the financial district, is the headquarters of the Standard Oil company, and here for many years John D. Rockefeller has occupied an office. This office is plainly furnished, and in an adjoining room is found a comfortable couch where the oil magnate takes a ten minute nap every day after lunch. No one is permitted to disturb him during his mid-day rest, but the people who know him well say that the best time to ask a favor is when he emerges from the inner room and takes his place at the desk. Someone asked Mr. Rockefeller, a time ago, to what he attributed his good health, and he said, "The ten minute sleep after lunch has done more for me than anything else." The habit has become contagious, and it is said that many other offices, in the busy block, have adopted the old gentleman's rest-room idea.

A story published in one of the magazines, not long since, told of the simple life and habits of a dozen of our great captains of finance, and with but one exception they all took time to live, and the most of them are well over on the shady side of life.

The exception to the rule was the late E. H. Harriman, who died at the age of sixty-one. Mr. Harriman ate a simple lunch at his desk while dictating to a stenographer, or attending to other important business. During his last illness, he had a telephone installed in his room, and hid the receiver under the bed to fool his physician. He used the instrument for two or three hours daily until prostrated by exhaustion. This bull dog tenacity was characteristic of the man, and it is said that his life was shortened a dozen years or more by over-work.

The brain with which we are endowed is a peculiar faculty, and the great God who planned it, and equipped it for service, intended that it should retain its powers until the end of the journey. Old people retire from active life, not so much because of brain fog, as because of brain rust and physical infirmities.

The average human body wears out and loses force and vitality long before the brain ceases to be active, and where a good mind, in an enfeebled body, is given occupation, it seldom shows signs of breaking, unless through inherited weakness.

The fact is generally recognized to-day that there are more diseased minds than bodies, and that the cause of many physical ills is due to mental worries. This is why Christian Science is making such rapid strides, and why mental healing is gaining in popularity.

The demons of "worry and hurry" talked about in the little poem, at the head of this article, is responsible for more ills of the mind, than all other causes combined, and yet its offspring are subject to control, if we will to control them.

The busiest people are not always the people who accomplish the most. The old hen that scratches around and clucks so vigorously to care for one chicken, creates more commotion, and has a harder time than her motherly neighbor who cares for a family of a dozen.

There are some women who resemble the hen with a single chick, and next to the women who have no chicks, they usually have more trouble than the mother of an orphan asylum. She worries over the list of children's diseases, whether the child ever has them or not, and later attempts to shield her offspring from contamination through a hot-house environment.

There are some men, as busy as bees from morning until night, who never accomplish much, because they travel around in a peck measure. They want to do all the business from sweeping out the store to locking up at night, and their leisure is devoted to worrying about the inefficiency of observation because they are not observing, and the result is that they are always trailing in the rear of the procession.

The trouble with many of us is that we fail to discover that the greatest instructor in the great school of experience, is observation, and we go on doing things in the same old way when other people have adopted a short cut which produces better results with half the work.

An old farmer came into the office, shortly after the corn contest closed, and said, "You can't tell me anything about raising corn, for I have raised it for fifty years." And yet his neighbor's boy across the road demonstrated that his soil was only producing half a crop.

Life is too large a thing to rush through it with hurry and worry, or to slight its great possibilities by pursuing a bull-headed policy that never gets a man anywhere.

The industrial world has long recognized the importance of keeping abreast of the times, and was never more keenly alive than today. About every factory finds it necessary to renew its equipment once in ten years to keep pace with new inventions and improvements.

Even the newspapers are obliged to keep in line or drop out. The Gazette hasn't a dollar's worth of equipment that it owned ten years ago, and will soon be compelled to adopt more modern methods.

The farmer who thinks he knows it all, has another guess coming, and if he will give the boys a chance they will show him where it is.

There is no dodging the heavy taxes of this year, but there is some satisfaction in knowing that our money is being freely spent for good roads and improved methods of agriculture, that will bear fruit in years to come.

There is only one good way to worry, and that is to let the other fellow do it, and the only time when it really pays to hurry is when you are on your way to dinner.

The sage of East Aurora said, the other day: "The master man is one with sympathy, wisdom and poise. And such are always learners as well as teachers."

Heart to Heart Talks

By CHARLES N. LURIE

THE OATH OF SERVICE.
England inducted into office the other day a new lord chief justice. He is the occupant of a seat of mighty renown and ancient line. It is the second highest judicial place in the legal world of England.

The new occupant is Sir Rufus Daniel Isaacs. He is the first Jew in the history of England to hold the office. He is not the first Jew to hold high judicial rank in England, for in 1872 Sir George Jessel, a Jew, was made master of the rolls.

Of this appointment Arnold Bennett, the famous novelist, says: "A Jew had been made master of the rolls, a spectacle at which England shivered, and then, perceiving no sign of disaster, shrugged its shoulders."

Some Englishmen have criticised the appointment of Sir Rufus Isaacs. But if he lives up to the terms of the "oath of service" which he took on assuming the office neither they nor England will have cause to regret the appointment. Here is the oath:

"I swear that I will do right to all manner of people after the laws and usages of this realm without fear or favor, affection or ill will, so help me God."

"Do right to all manner of people without fear or favor."

Is it not fortunate for us and for our consciences that most of us are not called upon in the ordinary course of our duties to take such an oath? For who of us, looking back on his past life, could truly say that he had lived up to it? And yet it is a noble ideal!

In so far as we set for ourselves and live up to a standard such as that which is embodied in this "oath of service" we are qualified to appear at the bar of conscience with clean hands.

Like all ideals, it shines high and clear above and beyond us. We may not reach it. We may only approach it.

But in the approach there is the satisfaction of good attempted. The setting of the standard is not enough. Effort must be made to approximate it if we would live righteous lives.

After all—

Is not this oath—"I swear that I will do right to all manner of people"—only a judicial expression of the Golden Rule?

"Do unto others as you would have others do unto you."

When Leonardo Da Vinci was not painting Mona Lisa or modeling great equestrian statues or inventing cannon, catapults, flutes, mechanical lions, patent pumps or scaling ladders, he would amuse himself by little excursions into anatomy, astronomy, physics, chemistry, philosophy, dietetics, the philosophy of dress or city planning.

If all these activities are not enough, Da Vinci was also an author of treatises on painting and other subjects, and even on many an occasion extemporized verses.

POULTRY SHOW MOST SUCCESSFUL EXHIBIT

ARISTOCRATS OF THE BARNYARD PROUD OF THEIR HAND-SOME PRIZE RIBBONS.

AWARD MANY PRIZES

Plans Already Being Made for Next Year's Show, Which Will Be Bigger Than Ever.

Tonight marks the closing of the sixth annual show of the Southern Wisconsin Poultry Association at the Auditorium. It has been a successful one, not only in number of entries, quality of entries, but also in point of attendance. Not to have succeeded in this show would be the regret of everyone after it is all over. Tonight is the last chance and the excitement is the last chance and the excitement to say the least.

All of the decisions have been rendered at the poultry show of the Southern Wisconsin Poultry Association, and the prize winners are strutting around too proud to look at the ordinary citizens of the farm yard. You should hear them crow about their victories. One would think that no bird had ever won a prize before, for as soon as you approach a cage decorated by a blue ribbon the occupant immediately begins to puff up and fill its lungs. Then you know there is something coming for your special benefit.

The percentages have not been made out yet but all of the ribbons have been distributed. The prizes will be awarded this afternoon and evening. Besides the regular and special prizes the winners are given a certain percent of the entrance money for their class of entries. This awarding of money prizes stimulates the breeding of a better quality of birds among the breeders and the remuneration thus received makes their efforts worth while.

Some of the cages which have been adorned with a liberal supply of prize ribbons since the show started, but the winners are Arthur Buehling's pen of Buff Rocks. These birds have captured a great number of prizes both here and in other cities. Brockhaus has won many ribbons with his pigeons of various kinds. C. K. Cass with his exhibition of water fowl is another contestant who carried away a large share of the ribbons.

Work of checking out the birds will take the greater part of Sunday, so that the work will not be complete until Monday. On Monday night an entire list of the prize winners will be given and many sales will undoubtedly be made, as the best guarantee of a good pedigree is the ribbon that a bird takes in an open show.

STARTING CAMPAIGN FOR HOSPITAL FUND

LEADERS HAVE HEADQUARTERS AT Y. M. C. A. BUILDING.

WATCH THE INDICATOR

Organize Teams to Canvass Entire City and Country to Raise Fifty Thousand—Have Novel Features.

All is in readiness for the opening of the big campaign for funds for the hospital on next Monday night at six-thirty. Already volunteers have been flocking to the Y. M. C. A. building, the headquarters of the campaign.

Up to three o'clock this afternoon about one hundred and fifty men and women had signed their intention of entering into the campaign and have pledged their services. The women are the men teams in the field, each team having seven members.

There are many speculations as to whether the women will be able to collect more than the men, it being thought by many that they will succeed in piling up a larger score than their masculine counterparts.

The first official meeting will take place at the Y. M. C. A. building at 6:30 on Monday evening. A supper will be served and everyone who decides to enter actively into the campaign is expected to attend. It is very essential that everyone be at the first meeting as instructions will be given out at that time to the plan of procedure. As this campaign is to be a well organized and scientifically planned affair no one will be able to lend efficient service unless he attends the daily meetings of the committees.

Novel features will be carried out at each of the meetings so that the interest will not be allowed to wane. The city has been divided up and the names of the entire population have been classified. The two hundred odd committee workers will choose and lists will be made up for each team of Monday night. It has been suggested that it would be well for all of the ministers and priests to call on the various churches and congregations to this Monday night meeting, at their services on Sunday.

A country organization will be affected to get in touch with the farmers and inhabitants of the surrounding country who are situated in the country and to provide his clothes, the case against George Little was dismissed by Judge Maxfield in municipal court Friday afternoon after some testimony had been taken. Mrs. Little was the complaining witness.

AMUSEMENTS

A SUGGESTION TO THEATREGOERS.

By Col. Wm. Franklin Riley of The Sheehan Opera Co.

It is suggested, in all good faith and with no intention of giving smart advice, that the habitual patrons of the Myers Theater, and also the chance frequenters of that place of entertainment, should, when pleased at a song or a gesture, or a speech of anyone upon the stage, bring the forearm up until at right angles with the upper arm, make use of the ball and socket joint, placed conveniently, in this neighborhood, and cause the forearm to swing inward, still preserving the right angle. Have the hands in proper position with open palms so that the swinging motion of the arms will bring the palms together. Repeat the motion several times in quick succession, gathering sufficient momentum to bring the hands together with an audible whack. Concentrate the mind on the fact that this feat is being performed because of an individual gratification to an individual taste that can decide without the restraining or impeding assistance of the remainder of the audience, and the momentum will increase. The result is a mark of genuine appreciation expressed in a perfectly well bred fashion and carrying to the occupants of the stage the knowledge that they are in a congenial atmosphere where their best effort will be appreciated.

A cold, critical audience is reflected in a performance which lacks the fire and enthusiasm usually displayed and the after feeling all around is disappointing.

Think this matter over and admit its reasonableness. And then resolve not to take half the evening to decide that the actors are worth your honest support. If they are good you can surely find it out in a very few minutes, and then give that elbow joint free rein. If the performance is so poor it is not deserving of a single hand-clap—the conclusion of the first act, quietly and unostentatiously gather up your wraps and depart.

THE APOLLO THEATRE.

That a laugh is contagious is evidenced daily at the Apollo when Ed Wilson as Dinah, sings his Laughing Nigger song. It takes but a few ripples of laughter from him to start the house to laughing. He has three colored boys who sing and dance and for long endurance, one of them is an extra good buck and wing dancer. The Olympia trio makes the biggest hit of all in a blend of harmony and humor. Three unusually fine voices combine to give the audience a rare treat. It is difficult to go on with the show when they make their final bow for they are compelled to encores again and again.

The Aloha Twins present a Hawaiian act that shows a true understanding of the part. Native songs, native costumes and native dances make a pleasing appearance. It is entirely a refined act and the Hula Hula dance as they dance it is a pretty spectacle.

The management of the Apollo announces a spectacular motion picture feature for Tuesday and Wednesday, "The Last Day of Pompeii".

The Tears of Joy.

The tears of joy are salt, as well as the tears of sorrow. And in that sentence are many meanings.—Francis Thompson.

It was moved and carried that the matter of renting additional grounds to care for the ever increasing amount of exhibits be left to the president and superintendent of grounds.

E. H. Fiedler was elected chairman of the committee on promotion and publication. F. W. Gillman, F. Hyne and Robert Acheson were chosen as a committee to secure the free attractions.

Dr. C. S. Ware, superintendent of speed, has already received an application from a well known horseman of Grand Forks, North Dakota, for the position of started at the Rock county fair, 1914.

Rasmuss Nelson of Hillsboro is a business caller here this week.

George Noyes returned yesterday from Madison where his wife recently underwent an operation at which the physicians now pronounce out of danger. Mrs. Noyes will probably be in the hospital three weeks at least.

Miss Jessie Kingdom of Madison called on local friends yesterday.

Mayor C. J. Pearsall was a recent Elgin visitor.

The indications are very strong that Evansville is to have one more lodge. Over twenty-five men have already signed their names to be on the charter list of the local camp of the Order of Rangers, a social and beneficial order. It is expected there will be at least fifty names on the charter list. J. H. Ryder of Beloit is spending several days in town in the interest of the new order.

Cleaning Woodwork.

It is safe to use a few drops of ammonia in the water with which woodwork is cleaned—but only a few drops to a pailful of water. The ammonia removes grease and grime. But it whitens varnished wood and removes paint if it is used in too strong solution; and it must always be used sparingly and quickly dried.

The barometric depression that was in the Lake Region yesterday has now reached the north Atlantic coast. It was attended by snow in the northeastern states, and by high winds in the lake region. The warm wave that prevailed in its southeastern quadrant has been carried off the land, and lower temperatures prevail in the Mississippi valley and southeastern states.

An area of high barometer is now over the North Central states and somewhat lower temperatures prevail in the northwest. It continues cloudy, however, and there has been no great loss of heat from the ground.

A great area of low barometer off the Pacific coast is attended by rising temperature and general rainfall on the Pacific slope. This disturbance is likely to cause bad weather in this vicinity early next week. For the present the weather will continue mostly cloudy, without much change in temperature tonight and Sunday.

ORFORDVILLE

Orfordville, Jan. 16.—H. C. Taylor was a morning passenger to Chicago on Friday morning.

A large quantity of tobacco was received on Friday. Some was handled by the local dealers and some was shipped.

Mrs. Lauver of Newark is suffering from an attack of typhoid fever. Dr. Forbush is attending her.

Matte Cantina has engaged with the Eggen Hardware store. They will put in a complete stock of hardware, and materials and will do all kinds of repairing.

Coryell was able to go to the creamery on Thursday, for the first time in more than two months. He seems to be gaining and will doubtless be fully recovered in a short time.

The annual meeting of the Orfordville Cemetery association was held at the depot on Friday afternoon. The routine business of the year was transacted and a movement started toward incorporating the association.

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Taylor and Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Smiley gave an "at home" party at the home of the latter in honor of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Crum, on Thursday evening. Between fifty and one hundred guests were present. A program consisting of readings, vocal and instrumental music was rendered, after which a dainty lunch was served. The evening was one of great enjoyment. Several from Beloit were among the guests.

Justice Taylor's court was occupied on Friday afternoon with the hearing of the case of the Orfordville Mercantile company vs. John C. Eggen. At the conclusion of the testimony the court took the case under advisement until Saturday at 10:30 o'clock.

Memory. You can train your memory to become a guide to lead you only into lands of sheer delight, where crystal streams flow pure and where beckoning angel figures lead you on to yet more and more loveliness. Or you can make it a pain and penance, a means to the terrifying of your present living life with the dust and ashes of a past which is better forgotten.

Supreme Court All-Powerful. The Supreme court of the United States is the most remarkable political institution of the world. Its judgment rendered upon cases brought before them becomes the supreme law of the land.

Side Lights On The Circus Business

By D. W. WATT

(Copyrighted)
To show you that people in circus business keep an eye out for investments of the right sort on the outside, I am going to tell you something about an investment that the Ringlings have made of some magnitude in the far off state of Montana, on the main line of what is known as the new St. Paul to the Coast. Along somewhere in the middle of the state is a town the main line known as Ringling. This town was named after the famous Ringling brothers and from it a branch about twenty miles in length runs off to the southwest up into the mountains 5,500 or 6,000 feet above sea level to the famous White Sulphur Springs. There, a few years ago, the Ringlings bought something around 30,000 acres of land, this being their original purchase, and rumor has it that they have added that until now something like 70,000 acres in this district are owned absolutely by the Ringlings.

At these White Sulphur Springs they built a commodious hotel and John Ringling built him a fine summer home where he and his wife spend more or less of their time during the summer and without any question in the near future this will be one of the famous summer resorts of the country. This large tract of land at one time was supposed to be what was known as the dry district, yet thousands of acres of the best hard wheat and flax are being raised there successfully every year.

Just what disposition the Ringlings will finally make of the large tract of land is not known, but it is expected that later it will be cut up into farms and sold to settlers. It is said that a large part of the stock in the short line road running to these famous springs is owned by the Ringlings and they are named among the directors of the road.

You can readily see that the investment of the Ringlings in this particular part of Montana will amount up to several hundred thousand dollars, and this may in the near future become as famous all over the country as is the famous 101-Ranch of Miller Brothers.

A few days ago through the courtesy of T. Russell of this city, who at that time was treasurer of the Ringlings, I was handed what was known around the show as the route book of the season. This is the only copy that has ever been seen which gave all the particulars of the season's work since I have been out of the business. It gives all of the details of the workings of the show from the opening in the spring until the close in the fall; the names of all the people connected with the show, number of miles traveled; accidents that occurred; a fact a detailed account of the season's work, a part of which I will give you in this letter:

Preface. This book contains the entire route of the great Forepaugh show for the season of 1889, giving with accuracy the names of the towns and cities where it has exhibited, the population, compiled, and is recapitulated with facts of interest while enroute. The season opened at Philadelphia, Monday, April 22nd, and closed Saturday, October 5th at Alliance, Ohio, making one hundred and twenty-four weeks, one hundred and eighty-four days, giving two hundred and eighty-eight performances with four extra performances at Detroit, Chicago, St. Paul and Minneapolis. At Ashland, Ky., owing to bad weather the day was lost, and at Peoria, Ill., the day was lost, thus making the grand total performances of the season one hundred and eighty-nine; taking a circuit of thirteen different states, which proved to be one of the most successful and profitable seasons to the only mammoth all-features show on earth.

Very truly,
JOHN BOYLE,
Press Agent Forepaugh's All-Features Show.

Below I will give you a few of the names of the Indians in their squaws, which are unique in themselves, but as they actually appeared on their contracts:

One Feather, Chief.
Mrs. Red-Stones-In-Her Stomach, and pappoose.
Short Horn.
Get-No-Horse.
Charging Thunder.
Savage-The-Head.
Eagle Head.
Red Star Chief.
Good Elk.
Bull Tail.
Red Eagle.
Shots-In-Head.
Long Elk.
Look-Bad.
Charley-Bad-Eye.
Black Eagle.
All-Fall-Over-The-Wall.
Snake-In-The-Grass.
Lone Trail.
Charley-The-Scalper.
Fleet Foot.
Dark Night, Chief.
Kiowa Bear.
Lightning.
Long Race.
Poison Arrow.
Many Battle, Chief.
Crazy Horse.
Blood-In-The-Eye.

Overture.—Medley Prof. George Ganweiler's Military Band.

Imposing spectacular entree, in two rings, on the central stage, and Hippo from truck, exhibiting the principal professional features of the Combined Forepaugh and "Wild West" shows. Realistic illustrations of life in the romantic West.

1—Bucking horses, ridden by Wild Horse Harry (Amuel) F. Cody and California Frank.
2—An old-fashioned Virginia reel on horseback by cowboys and Western girls.
3—The pony express, illustrating the manner of carrying the United States mail on the frontier before the advent of the railroad.
4—Scout surprised by Indians and tortured by fire; rescued by cowboys.
5—Lynch law on the frontier; capture and hanging of a horse thief.
6—Race between an Indian and an Indian mounted on pony, later turning stake and return.
7—Reproduction of an historical scene. The attack of Indians on the Deadwood stage coach, with running fight and gallant repulse of scouts and cowboys.

8—Stirring representation of the ever-memorable and sanguinary battle (fought June 25, 1876,) between United States troops led by General George A. Custer, and the implacable Sioux, marshalled by the formidable Sitting Bull. Sergeant Charles W. Neider, sole survivor of Custer's immediate command, who carried the general's dispatches to Major Reno on the ill-starred field, appears in this mimic encounter in his old role of the courier. Sensational introduction of Lone Feather, fighting chief of the Ogallala Sioux; Bull Tail, who led the final assault that annihilated Custer, and other savage survivors of that historic horror.

Custer's Last Rally; or, The Battle of the Little Big Horn.
Vividly dramatic reproduction of the ambush, attack, repulse, defeat and death of the chivalric Custer.

Circus Notes Gathered by the Way-side.

Incidents, accidents, etc.
The bonanza cities of the season were: Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Charleston, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Omaha, Lincoln, Topeka, Wichita, Springfield, Mo., Kansas City, St. Joe, Des Moines, Keokuk, Cedar Rapids, Marshalltown, Ottumwa, Springfield, Ill., Bloomington, Danville, Frankfort, Ind., Kokomo, Muncie.

Cities where three performances were given: Detroit, Chicago, St. Paul and Minneapolis.

George Johnson, a canvasser, fell from a train near Kansas City, Mo., early on the morning of September 10 and was instantly killed. His remains were buried in Winthrop.

Creston, Iowa, proved to be the panicky town of the season. Chariton was also frosty.

The shortest run made was from St. Paul to Minneapolis, 10 miles.

One of the many features was Prof. Ganweiler's superb orchestra, which disclosed new and elegant music weekly.

The longest run made was from Staunton, Va., to Charleston, 233 miles.

Total number of miles traveled during the season was 9,338. Average miles per run were 76.65.

Business has been excellent this season, with but little bad weather, and everybody extremely happy.

A miniature cyclone struck the show at Sioux Falls, Dakota, and did considerable damage to the canvas, on August 19.

While at Stillwater, Monday, August 12, many of our people visited the state's prison and had a talk with the three noted Younger brothers, who are serving a life sentence. Later, September 15, Bob Younger died of consumption.

While enroute from Marshalltown to Oskaloosa, on the morning of September 19th, the first section (cage train) going down grade at Searsboro, 20 miles north of Oskaloosa, and the engineer in running back to pick up the balance of the cars a collision occurred, doing considerable damage, telescoping two flat cars, smashing the cage train, and breaking the cage train. Eagle tableau, the lion cage, yak cage and many wagons. Two canvassers were somewhat injured, but not seriously. All of the cars were more or less damaged. Cause of accident, sleepy brakeman. Loss to show estimated at $15,000.

On the evening of September 7, while the show trains were being transferred from the Gulf road to the Missouri, Kansas & Texas, in order to reach the show grounds, the tracks were wrenched from under one of the cars, causing a wreck, by which several cages containing lions, tigers, hyenas, and leopards were broken to pieces. The animals escaped from their cages, causing considerable excitement all over the city. Men formed in companies and surrounded them, and succeeded in recapturing all but one jaguar, which escaped to the woods on Grand river, four miles south of town. The accident caused a delay of two or three hours in the parade and the performances, which were witnessed by fully 15,000 people. Later—the jaguar was captured, but died on arriving at the show, September 14.

During the parade at Kansas City, Monday, September 8, the large band wagon containing Prof. Ganweiler's Military Band overturned at the corner of Ninth and Broadway and all of the musicians were more or less injured. Louis S. Taylor, a young man of Thompson, Conn., and who plays the trombone, had a knee cap and his leg broken, below the knee, broken by striking the curb. Besides this he was considerably bruised about the hip and back. Jacob Ganweiler, the clarinet player, had a shoulder dislocated, and an arm fractured. He went home to Quincy, Ill. F. A. Warner, whose family lives at Adrian, Mich., had his right shoulder dislocated. He also received cuts and bruises about the face and head. Harry Baxter, cornetist, whose home is in Warrenton, complains of internal injuries. Warren and Taylor, the two men who received the worst injuries, were taken to the Sisters' Hospital. Special Agent Semon received orders from Mr. Forepaugh, to see that the men received the best of care and treatment at Mr. Forepaugh's expense.

Handy Boxes.
Every living room or library ought to have somewhere in it a handy box or drawer. In it should be wrapping paper, string, stickers, clips, mullage or paste, tags and the thousand and one little things that one is likely to want frequently and is inconvenienced by not having. If they are handy in a known place time is saved over again.

YOU'RE BILIOUS AND COSTIVE—CASCARETS

Sick Headache, Bad Breath, Sour Stomach, mean Liver and Bowels Clogged—Clean up tonight.

Get a 10-cent box now.

Furred Tongue, Bad Taste, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a still barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret tonight will give your constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months. Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then to keep their stomach, liver and bowels regulated, and never know the misery the moment they realize need a good, gentle cleansing, too.

STOP CATARRH!

Unless Properly Treated With Hyomei This Disease May Become Serious.

If you have catarrh, indicated by sniffing, stopped up head, droppings in the throat and morning choking, there is an irritated state of the mucous membrane which affords an ideal condition for the growth of disease germs.

Do not allow these dangerous germs to begin the destruction of your health.

The easiest, simplest, quickest, surest and cheapest way to check catarrh is by breathing Hyomei. This wonderful medicated air treatment does not upset the stomach, but is breathed in through the Hyomei inhaler, directly following and surely destroying all disease germs that may have been inhaled—the tissues of the throat, nose and lungs are quickly healed and vitalized.

SOCIALISTS WINNING POWER IN GERMANY; OTHER BERLIN NEWS

German Export Report Shows Increase
Caused by American Tariff—
To Spend Million for Aviation.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Berlin, Jan. 17.—The German capitalist's own artillery has been turned upon him by the Socialists. The money interests have been awakened by the first encounter to the realization that the Socialist resources are a factor in financial affairs. This awakening came recently when, as reported by cable, the "labor unions," which owe allegiance to the Socialists, decided to withdraw $5,000,000 in deposits from one of the big banking houses because it had discharged a clerk for joining in a movement for higher salaries. The sum was re-deposited in banks willing to see that their employees' coalition rights were respected.

The total funds of the unions are estimated at between $20,000,000 and $30,000,000. But even this sum is only a minor part of the Socialists' accumulation of the workingmen. Their co-operative stores and buying societies represent a capital of about $40,000,000. Of the $1,200,000,000 accumulated in the reserves of the governmental insurance system about 75 per cent has been contributed by the workers, whose interest in private insurance funds is estimated at well over $250,000,000. About half of the $4,500,000,000 deposited in savings banks in Germany belongs to the laboring classes. In all persons of this class own, it is figured, between a seventh and an eighth of the total wealth of the country.

Aroused Comment.

Two illustrations of the capitalistic aspect of the Socialist unions have lately aroused much comment. These were loans made by Socialist organizations to two municipalities, which were able to place bond issues with the Socialists to much better advantage than with the ordinary banks.

Tariff Affects Trade.

While the German business men are declaring that the export trade to the United States has not been noticeably affected by the new American tariff, statistics from the American Consulate General show an increase of more than $1,500,000 during the first two months since the tariff act came into force, the increase in these two months being almost ten per cent of the total business passing through the consulate in the preceding year.

Eggs are a feature of the increase. These figures for the first time in the reports of the Berlin consulate but the item is already considerable, over $75,000 worth having been shipped during November and first twelve days of December, or at a rate of more than $2,000,000 worth a year. This money does not go to poultrymen in Germany, however, for the shipments originate in Russia or Austrian Galicia and are handled here only in transit.

Increase in Textiles.

In the German trade the principal increases are shown in textiles particularly cotton goods and velvets, and in toys. The so-called "heavy industry" of iron and steel products has not been conspicuously affected, but the exports here believe that the German manufacturers will find much of an opening to the American markets under the new tariff.

At the consulate it is thought that the effect is only beginning to be felt. Inquiries are received daily from buyers in the United States, just awakening to possibilities under the new law.

Found Hospital.

Sir Ernest Cassel, the London financier whose benefactions to his native city of Cologne and to Germany run into millions, has established a new charitable foundation in Cologne for the benefit of ailing women and children. Two hundred bonds of the City of New York, worth at present quotations some $275,000 have been transferred to the Cologne municipality, which is to use the income in caring for weak and sick women, girls and children at health camps, sanatoria, etc. No discrimination of creed is to be made.

Million for Aviation.

The National Aviation Committee purposes to spend nearly a million dollars in the encouragement of aviation in Germany during 1914, according to plans recently announced. This is more than double the amount expended last year when a total of $425,000 was appropriated.

The committee has already committed itself to spend $700,000 and further appropriations of about $300,000 are proposed. Large sums are set aside for instruction for aviators, for insurance, for prizes, for awarding the inventors of the best motors for aviation purposes, for promoting aviation in the German colonies, for establishing hydroaeroplane stations along the coast and for aviation schools at Jochensthal and Munich. In view of the advances in aviation the committee

CONTINUE CAMPAIGN FOR BALLOT RIGHTS IS MILITANTS' PLAN

English Suffragette Union Will Work on Constitutional Lines to Bring Voting Victory.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, Jan. 17.—Pressure of the demand for suffrage will be kept up by women of England with unrelenting vigor during the year 1914, according to announcement from the National Union of Women's Suffrage Societies. This organization which is working only along constitutional lines, will hold its annual council in February to map out its political campaign, which it has already been decided, will be begun with a great mass meeting in Albert Hall on February 14th "to voice the united and constitutional demand for a government measure for women's suffrage."

In review of the work of the past year it is pointed out that increased pressure has been directed upon the government in constituencies represented by anti-suffragist ministers, and upon strengthening the position of the labor party, the only party in the house of commons which has made the women's cause an integral part of its policy. The whole work has been concentrated on the demand for a government measure, attempts during the year previous for a bill introduced by private members or an amendment to the government's franchise bill having both failed.

Converting Liberals.

A recent by-election in South Lanark is cited as showing the activity of the women in helping to sweep away a Liberal majority. The reduction of the Liberal strength is also reported in many important constituencies.

The review continues:

Not long ago Sir Edward Grey admitted that the record of the house of commons on the women's suffrage question had not been good, and if to suffragists it has been profoundly unsatisfactory, the success of the advance in the country is only the more significant. The pilgrimage in July from Edinburgh to London was the greatest demonstration which the National Union, or indeed any suffrage society ever produced.

At a time when resentment against militant methods was at its height, the country villages and the great towns showed their appreciation of law-abiding propaganda, by during the session of crowded meetings, isolated acts of hooliganism were rare, but they gave way rapidly before the general good-will which was above all demonstrated in the great final mass meeting in Hyde Park on July 26th.

"The support for women's suffrage from responsible citizens is represented by favorable resolutions from nearly 200 county, town and rural district councils, and from the branches of nearly all the trade unions in the country."

"Practically all the greater women's organizations support women's suffrage, including the National Union of Women Workers, which has once more discussed the question this year, and of the 50 suffrage societies existing, the National Union alone has a membership of nearly 50,000, while between 25,000 and 30,000 Friends of Women's Suffrage have been enrolled up to date. About $100,000 has been administered from headquarters during the year and the total number of meetings held is considerably over 2,700."

"One danger during the year has been averted. The passage of the manhood suffrage bill was rendered impossible in the face of unredeemed pledges, speaker's ruling and the postponement of the bill till the end of the session was decided upon, the annual conference of the labor party by 2 to 1 passed a resolution opposing any further extension of the franchise to men without the inclusion of women. In the following September the trade union congress adopted a resolution censuring the government for failing to redeem its promises about women's suffrage and demanding government reform bill which would include women. Finally the year has marked the growing strength of the movement in the church indicated by the sympathetic attitude of the church congress at Southampton and the letter of the bishop of Winchester urging the definite prospect of the introduction of a suffrage bill as a first-class measure.

"The strength of feeling among the more progressive liberal women and their determination to stand for suffrage principles or for what they regard as an essential part of liberal policy, is further seen in the recent formation of the Liberal Women's Suffrage Union. Amongst men it has its counterpart in the Liberal Men's Association for Women's Suffrage."

"A review of the suffrage during the past year carries us far beyond the limits of our own country. When addressing the international congress last June, Mrs. Chapman Catt, the president, reminded her audience that the question of women's suffrage had been considered in seventeen national parliaments during the past winter, and in 33 states and other legislatures. In the far east, China was about to be admitted to the International Alliance and even Persia now had her progressive movement. Of the enfranchised countries, Australia, California, Norway, Oregon and Washington sent official government representatives to the congress and during the session news was received that Norway had obtained her full equal suffrage rights. The territory of Alaska must also now be added to the list, and in June Illinois obtained enfranchisement on the same terms as men, involving the enfranchisement of her million women in Chicago."

"Success in Denmark. Since the international congress the parliament in Iceland has again passed the amendment to the constitution, granting the vote to women on the same terms as men, and the bill now awaits the sanction of the king of Denmark. This will be granted if the bill is confirmed by the newly-elected parliament next April. On October 7th and 8th the reform bill in Denmark, including the enfranchisement of women, having passed its third reading in the lower house, was read for the first time in the upper chamber. When parliament opened in Holland, the queen in her speech gave her promise of a bill for amending the constitution and granting equal suffrage right to women and in Poland the president of the diet, when replying to a recent suffrage deputation, stated that his new proposal for reform would include woman suffrage though not eligibility. The situation in Sweden is very encouraging and there is reason to suppose she will obtain her enfranchisement during 1914, while in Finland the parliamentary elections last August resulted in an increase in the number of women members of parliament of whom there are now twenty-one."

"Lame-Sickness Caused by Plants. An investigation of the South African disease known as lamiekte, or lame-sickness, suggests that it is due to a special plant poison that is generated under abnormal conditions in grasses or other plants that are normally harmless. Its development seems to be associated with unusual weather and soil experiences, of which summer drought is important. Through such conditions wilting would favor the formation of the poison, and this gives explanation for the common belief that the disease results from eating wilted plants."

"MORE BUSINESS"

By GEORGE FITCH, Author of "At Good Old Bivash."

"MORE BUSINESS" is the motto which has made the United States the greatest country on earth for merchants, manufacturers, automobile sellers and nerve specialists.

"More business" keeps every enterprising man hustling from sun-up until he runs down in the evening. It makes every year a race with the year preceding. It makes millionaires in one-fourth and nervous wrecks in one-tenth the time required by any other system. It makes the United States grow so fast that all business statistics are out of date by the time they are published. It makes every phenomenal year a calamity to the owner of a business because it requires him to work himself to death the next year to beat the record again. It is more profitable than digging gold with a steam shovel and less healthy than running 100 yard races all day without stopping for breath between dashes.

The "more business" fiend has cut the word "fail" out of his lexicon. He has also cut the words "content," "rest," "caution" and "lunch hour." He only recognizes the word "happiness" when he is formally introduced, because they live so far apart. "Happiness" lives away up the line somewhere, no one knows just where—probably where "more business" has become "all that business" and successful plans for doubling "all the business" in the next three years and of establishing a branch office on Mars have been worked out.

"More business" makes prosperity more dangerous than adversity in this country because such increase of business necessarily means a heroic effort to find capital to increase it still farther. When the United States becomes so prosperous that every factory has doubled its output and has loaded its debts in order to make the first payment on a plant which will increase the doubled output 101 per cent, it is time to put up storm warnings, rent the family automobile and clean out the cyclone cellar for immediate occupancy.

When a man has "more business" to such an extent that while he made $759,000 profit last year he is depressed because his volume of business decreased .07 per cent, he thinks he needs less legislation, but ten to one he needs less business.

Truth of the Matter.
Dey ain't no lion in de way at all; Dey des some ole sin you tried ter hide dat's waitin' fer you whar de road turns.—Atlanta Constitution.

SHINGLES

Large Lot of Shingles Purchased at Bankrupt Prices

Owing to the financial stringency of certain mills on the coast, due to tariff and other conditions, we have jointly been able to purchase a lot of Clear Red Cedar Shingles (best grade) at extremely low prices, and we propose to give the public the benefit.

These shingles are now being shipped and upon arrival will be sold at not to exceed $3.10 per thousand and perhaps as low as $3.00.

These prices are lower than have ever been known before in the red cedar shingle industry.

Baltimore, Md.—"I am more than glad to tell what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. I suffered dreadful pains and was very irregular. I became alarmed and sent for Lydia E. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record of being the most successful remedy for female ills we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., seem to prove this fact.

Broadway Jones

From the Play of
George M. Cohan

By EDWARD MARSHALL

With Photographs from Scenes in the Play

"Yes," said that young person, unashamed, "those and a great many more."

"Bob Wallace! I'm surprised! Shame on you!"

Wallace scarcely was prepared for this. "Now see here, Jackson, I—"

He did not complete the sentence, but seized his old friend by the lapels of his coat as if to bear him from the room to some spot where, unworried by the lady's presence, he could talk or hammer sense into his head.

But Broadway would not have this. He pulled away with emphasis. "Don't do that! Don't do that!" he cried. "You've—you've insulted my future wife and I demand apologies!"

Were all his plans for paying up his debts to be thus put at naught? Was his first venture as a financier to be thus nullified? He thought not!

"You mean to say you're going to be married?"

"Of course we're going to be married," Mrs. Gerard said very snappily.

"Of course we're going to be married," Broadway echoed with a quick glance at her which Wallace thought held something indicating apprehension.

He stood aside with face all woe-begone, worried and amazed. If this thing—this unthinkable, unbelievable insanity—was seriously planned by his young friend, if he had actually passed his word, why then, of course, nothing more was to be said upon the subject.

"Very well then; I apologize," he said dejectedly.

"Not to me," said Jackson grandly, "to the lady."

Wallace went to her in humility of attitude, but in revolt of soul. "Mrs. Gerard" (he never before had found it difficult to avoid profanity in a lady's presence), "I offer a thousand apologies."

She was not convinced of his sincerity, which was not in the least surprising. "After such impertinence I don't know that I ought to accept your apology."

"But, don't you see? I thought it was all a joke."

This was a new offense. "But why should you think such a thing? Is it at all unusual that people in love should marry?"

He thought her positively aged as he looked at her. Every wrinkle in her countenance took on new length, new depth as he observed her. From her he looked to Jackson. How very young he seemed! A mere child, in fact.

"Why, no," he granted, knowing that he lied. "Of course not. But I—I didn't understand."

Broadway, himself with nerves unstrung almost to hysteria, began to hum a tune and walk about, endeavoring to look unconscious. Wallace eyed him with new hope kindling in his eyes. Was it, after all, a jest?

"Now see here, Jackson; if you're trying to fool me I want to know! I—"

Mrs. Gerard, who had been upon the point of granting him forgiveness, stiffened in new wrath. "There you go again!" she screamed hysterically. "Another insult!"

"Really, Mrs. Gerard, I didn't mean it."

"Then what did you mean?" The lady fixed him with a baleful glance.

He was entirely undone. "Why, I—God knows! I don't!"

"Well," said Jackson, "I think I do. You're still in doubt as to whether or not we are really going to be married. Isn't that it?"

Put thus lucidly and simply, Wallace could not definitely deny that that explained his mental state. He had opened his distressed lips to admit this when Mrs. Gerard prevented the expression of his worries with:

"But why should he imagine such a thing? I—"

Broadway rose to the occasion, nearly making Wallace faint with the glib ease with which he used endearing words when talking to the "ancient dame." "Just a moment, sweetheart—"

dear—please!" Then he turned to Wallace. "Come on, now; tell me the truth!"

"Well, I will admit," said his miserably heartick friend, "that at first I did think it was a joke. But—"

"And you're not quite satisfied yet that it is not?"

"Why, of course, if you say—why—"

"I'll put you right, it'll all true. We're engaged. We're going to be married and we expect to be very happy. Do you believe it, now?"

"Why, certainly, if you say so." His next question was of Mrs. Gerard. "May I ask how long you've been engaged?"

"We became engaged last night at dinner."

"That's right. It was last night at dinner," her fiancé corroborated. "It was during the ice cream."

"It all happened in a moment," said the bride-elect.

"Just like this," said Jackson. "See?"

"What?"

"I mean she said 'yes.' Beatrice said 'yes,'" corrected Jackson.

"We're going to spend our honeymoon in Spain," she gushed, restored to a good temper by Broadway's explanation.

"Spain!" It was Wallace who exclaimed.

"Yes, Spain," said Broadway, too elated at the thought of finding cash to pay bills to be worried about anything. "I'm going out this afternoon to buy a sombrero and a tambourine. Won't you congratulate us, Wallace?"

But Wallace simply could not trust his ears. "Jackson, if you're trying to fool me—"

"There he goes again!" cried the now thoroughly infuriated bride-elect. "Jackson, I'm not going to stay here and be insulted in such a manner!"

"There! There!" Jackson soothed, following her as she essayed to leave the room. "Don't be worried. Mr. Wallace only thinks we're fooling him."

"But why should he think such a thing?"

Wallace, again contrite, approached and started to apologize. She waved him back with a wild hand.

"Leave him to me, dear," Jackson urged her. "In five minutes I'll convince him that it all is absolutely true."

She was comforted a little by his tone. "Then you won't come for a drive?"

"Stop for me in, say, half an hour."

"Well, I'll run along, then. I must get the air. All this has given me a dreadful headache."

Jackson turned reproachfully to Wallace. "See what you've done? I—"

"Bye bye, dearie!" cried his fiancée. "Bye bye, sweetheart!"

"In half an hour!"

"About that."

"Don't you listen to that man!" This in a warning tone.

"No; I'm going to make him listen to me."

"Oh, you dear boy! Bye bye, dearie!" She waved a plumply wrinkled hand at him, and left the two young men alone together.

"Say, are you going crazy?" were Wallace's first words, spoken as soon as he was sure that she was gone.

"Nothing of the kind. I'm perfectly all right."

"You mean to tell me that—"

"I've got a whole lot to tell you. Sit down."

As Wallace found a chair and, as if exhausted, sank into it, Broadway paced the room uneasily.

"The bell rang and Rankin hurried in, on his way to answer it."

"If it's anyone for me, I'm not at home," said Broadway. "I'm visiting in—Paterson."

He turned again to Wallace.

"Now, in the first place," he said gravely, "I want you to understand thoroughly that I'm positively serious about this whole affair and that nothing you can say will change my plans."

"Well, go on."

"Mrs. Gerard and I are going to be married, and it's going to happen very shortly, whether you like it or not. If you care to retain my friendship you must get used to it"—he sighed—"the same as I shall have to. Am I clear?"

"Well, I'm listening."

Broadway sighed again. "I know several girls who will cry very bitterly, and I know a lot of fellows who will laugh very heartily; but the fact remains that the lady who just left this room is to become Mrs. Jackson Jones. So, once and for all, get it out of your head that it is a joke."

He glanced distastefully at his very mournful friend, who seemed, somehow, to have shriveled as he heard all this uncompromising talk.

"And don't sit there like a pallbearer! Smile! Utter a few kind words! Say something, anyhow! I—"

Wallace leaned toward him, his eye lighting with the fire of combat.

"Now."

"Don't you dare to give me any argument about this thing! It would only be a waste of words. My mind is positively made up."

"Do you realize what—"

"What people are going to say? Of course I do. I've gone over all of that. I've threshed it out with myself from every possible angle. I know what they're going to say, and I know exactly what they're going to think."

"Well, what are they going to think?"

"The natural thought will be that I am marrying her for her money."

"Nonsense. They'll know better than that. Everyone's aware that you have all the money any man could—"

"So you think so?" For the first time Broadway laughed. It was a scornful, scathing, tragic laugh. It startled Wallace.

"Well, haven't you?"

"Just a second. Rankin! Oh, Rankin!"

Rankin was entering, even as he called, bringing in a telegram. Broadway took it without heeding it and thrust it in his pocket unopened. He was intent on showing Wallace how affairs really were with him.

"Rankin," he warned the man, "don't want to be disturbed for the next ten minutes. I have some business which I wish to talk over with Mr. Wallace without a single interruption."

"Very well, sir."

As soon as the man had left the room Broadway settled to his task of making a clean breast of it.

"I'm going to let you in on a little secret, Bob—my secret. No one else in the world knows. I wouldn't tell anyone else but you. I wouldn't tell you if it weren't for the fact that we've always been so close and such good friends. But remember—it's Mamma's!"

Wallace gravely bowed. "Certainly."

He was intensely puzzled; he could not imagine what was coming.

"Well," said Broadway, with no further prelude, "Bob, I'm broke!"

"You're—what?" said Bob incredulously.

"Broke. Dead broke. Are you surprised?"

"Say, what kind of a joke is this?"

Broadway laughed ruefully. "It's no joke to be broke, Bob; but it's even worse than that with me. I'm in debt!"

"To the extent of about fifty thousand dollars."

"Well, what have you done with all your money?"

"Put it back into circulation where it came from," Broadway answered, sighing.

"You mean Wall Street?"

"No; Broadway."

"Investments gone wrong?"

"I never invested any money. The only thing I ever did was to spend it."

"But you couldn't spend all the money you had?"

"It was easy. Everyone seemed glad to take it."

"But I supposed you had an enormous income."

"Well, that's what they all thought and still think. That's why I've been able to go along and run head over heels in debt. I owe tailor bills, boot bills, jewelry bills; flower bills, restaurant bills. I've got a stack of bills in that room there that would make Rockefeller complain of the high cost of living, and I can't pay them because I'm broke. Flat broke!"

"It's hard to believe. Can't it?"

"Why, you always led me to believe that you were a millionaire?"

"Not exactly that. But I did not deny the stories that, somehow, got to going round. Maybe I lied a little. At that, I would be worth a million by now if I'd had any business ability, with the bank roll I had to start with."

"When I came here to New York and started to burn up Broadway, five years or so ago, I was worth two hundred and fifty thousand dollars. There was cash, real estate and my small interest in the chewing gum factory. First thing I did was to spend the cash, then I sold the real estate, then I sold my interest in the factory."

"I had no use for anything but cash."

"My Uncle Abner bought me out and cheated me. He paid me just a hundred thousand, a measly hundred thousand, for my share of the property out of which he's since then made a dozen fortunes. I hear the gum trust offered him a million dollars for the plant and the good will last year."

"Jones' Pepsin!"

"Yes; Jones' Pepsin, made in Jonesville. It's the oldest gum on the market. Ever chew it?"

"No."

"Don't. It's awful. It's terrible stuff!"

"Well, go on. What happened, then?"

"I could scarcely wait to get hold of that money and get out of that town. I wanted New York; nothing but New York. I had heard about New York; I had read about New York; I'd been down here as a kid on visits. I talked New York. I dreamed New York. Why, from the time I was a kid, in knickerbockers, to the time I left Jonesville, everybody called me 'Broadway.' That's where it began."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Fine Distinction.

The fine distinction in the animal kingdom is that the biggest hog gets killed, while the human article goes on and on forever.

Dinner Stories

In the soft firelight the boarding-house sitting room looked almost cozy and attractive. The warmth and comfort thawed the heart of the oldest boarder.

In an expansive moment he turned toward the landlady, who was his only companion in the room, and, clasping her hands fondly, murmured:

"Will you be my wife?"

The woman did not start or blush. No maidenly coyness shone from her clear, cold eyes.

"No, sir," she replied, with calm deliberation. "I'm sorry, but I can't."

James J. Hill, on the occasion of his seventy-fifth birthday, talked of the marvelous speed of American trains.

"Three men," he said, "a Frenchman, an Englishman and an American, were once praising their respective railroads for an American will praise his railroads abroad, though at home it's usually a different story."

"Well, the Englishman said: 'Our express trains go so fast that the telegraph poles along the line look like a high board fence.'"

"Our rapid," said the Frenchman, "go so fast that the stations along the line seem continuous, like a city block."

"The American puffed at his cigar thoughtfully."

"Once, on an American express," he said, "I passed a field of carrots, a field of potatoes, a field of cabbages, and a cow, and the train, going so fast—so fast—so fast—I thought I saw an Irish stew."

Wonderful Cough Remedy.

Lawson of Elkhart, Ind., writes: "Dr. King's New Discovery is the most wonderful cough, cold and throat and lung medicine I ever sold in my store. It can't be beat. It sells without any trouble at all. It needs no guarantee. This is true, because Dr. King's New Discovery will relieve the most obstinate coughs and colds. Lung troubles quickly helped by its use. Government Women Who Hold Unique Or Lucrative Jobs

SUCH a great deal has been written of a woman doing a man's work that it is interesting, and said, about the harm to note the effect upon the colony of females working for Uncle Sam at Washington.

Strangely, the most difficult and unique positions are not, as a rule, the best paying. And while there are women in possession of as good if not better positions than the men working around them, their number is not anything like so great.

Certain departments appear more partial to the fair sex than others, and just now the Treasury and Post Office Departments are regarded as the could put all the lavish splendors of the earth to shame as, in company with several members of the "opposite sex," she daily handles and counts and burns up a princely fortune in greenbacks—but it doesn't!

Until last year no woman had attempted the trying ordeal of standing mutely by and watching millions burn—Miss Lester, however, regards it, literally, as so much "kale" and manages to smile and grow plump on a very modest salary.

Pioneer White House Typist.

Certain clerks in the Post Office Department consider that Miss Alice B. Sanger has a favored position because she is in the office of the Chief Clerk, but she knows it means heavier work. Miss Sanger was a pioneer among women stenographers in Washington. "I learned shorthand in Indiana," she explained, "from an obliging court reporter. Man? Of course he was a man! We had practically no women stenographers there in those days, and as for a college of stenography where girls might study, why such an idea would have been laughed at."

"Well, I was a friend of the Harrison family and after making short-hand I went into the office of the President-to-be. When he started campaigning I was made his personal stayed for a year and a half with the Cleverlands."

Miss Sanger handles postal and cable matters, the annual message of the Postmaster General to the President, half a dozen other office details and receives about $1,800 a year, despite her lifetime of special fitness. Miss Lillian Norton, of the Division of Finance, is a wonder at figures, and no mere man could dare poke fun at her accounts or attempt to straighten out any tangle she might make in estimating. She, likewise, would have to "pass up" the nest egg of eighteen hundred per annum should she consider matrimony.

Over at the Indian Office there is Mrs. Marie Baldwin, a half-breed Indian woman, who has the pleasure of passing on claims for her people as a clerk. She fulfills her duties so well that she receives equal salary with men who handle land cases there.

Youth Essential at Capitol.

Only within the past decade has the colony of workers up at the Capitol become a factor in the life of the Government woman.

Here youth counts for more than experience. Few of the stenographers of feminine persuasion have reached the thirty mark in life's tide line; most of them have not yet lived a quarter of a century. They must be capable stenographers—not necessarily rapid ones—neat looking, and able to refrain from gossiping about matters legislative.

And for that list of accomplishments they receive from $1,200 to $1,440 to $2,250 a year, with long vacations, many privileges and an opportunity to meet marriageable men.

Mrs. Marion M. Martin, secretary to Representative Underwood and clerk to the Committee on Ways and Means, officially receives $2,000 a year; but there is no law against her making a third again that much if she cares to do extra work for any of her Committee—and the hours enable a hustler to accomplish it.

Perhaps Miss Lillian M. Reesch is the best known of all the stenographers at the Capitol. She is really private secretary, clerk and general factotum around the office of Mr. South Trimball, Clerk of the House, for there isn't a detail of the day's routine with which she is unfamiliar. She receives $1,400 a year, but that is just a part of her earnings.

Miss Reesch is an unusually finished manipulator of the keys and juggler of the little shaded marks which mean so much—or so little. Many moons ago she learned that the hardest of feminine lessons—how to tattle, and it has been a paying investment. A man of important affairs, the import of which would interest many people, knows that he can find in Miss Reesch a rapid shorthand transcriber, a competent typewriter and a woman who will forget what he has dictated before he leaves the office. So she enjoys an enviable addition to her regular wages.

Highest Salaried Woman.

According to the report of the Secretary of the Senate, Leona M. Wells is the highest salaried woman at the Capitol. She is listed as "assistant clerk," and receives $2,500 per annum.

Miss Theresa M. Curtis, clerk to the Committee on Coast Defenses, receives $2,250 a year and so do five other young women there for like services. Eighteen hundred a year is received by something less than a dozen graduates of business colleges, and where a girl is willing and competent to do the work of both secretary and stenographer she receives a double compensation—for Congress allows the sum, and it can be expended as the Congressman best sees fit.

Has a Difficult Job.

No article on Government women, laboring as a class or as individuals, could be complete without mention of Miss Julia Lathrop. She is head of the Children's Bureau, and is paid $5,000 a year by Uncle Sam to determine what is best for the children crying in the night. Miss Lathrop always hears them, for her work does not cease with the closing down of her desk lid.

Twenty-four hours of the day she is the director of that Bureau. It is husband, family, home and recreation to her, and there isn't a man in the Government who could fill it or would venture to try. It is one position about which there has never been heard the evasive plaint "It pays too much."

CAROLYN CROSS.

FINE FEATHERS AND GLAD RAIMENT

FOR long man has been the only male bird who did not wear the gay plumage of the family! It is the peacock who dazzles the eye by the brilliancy of his fan and the husband of the ostrich family whose feathers are the fluffiest. And man used to shine as the chief ornament of the household, too, when he wore a velvet buskin—whatever that is—high-heeled boots, huge fur muffs and hat with long waving plumes, while the women of the family trailed about in sad, dun-colored clothing.

But then came a long period of sombre togs, from which the lord and master of the home is just emerging. Globe trotters, who stepped from the gangplanks of the finest steamships, three winters ago electrified waiting Americans by the gaudiness of their hats and hosiery and the rumor went forth that "men are going to wear GREEN hats!"

The conservative replied that there always were, and will be, certain extremists to dress regardless of taste, but that "no man who amounted to anything" would so defy the amenities.

Last winter more than one male individual whose voice is heard in councils of the noted bought himself a verdant-hued cape and tried not to show that he felt as nervous as a debutante in her first long dress. He was too much in the minority, however, to feel that superiority which accompanies the correctly garbed.

But this autumn the male creature boldly asserted his hereditary right to be the human rainbow of his family.

Grandfather and grandson consider it not only right, but necessary, to wear blue velvet hats—and not any dull, dark blue, indigo which looks black at night, either, but the vivid, unmistakable blue—and blue viscose, or chinilla overcoats. This departure would be alone sufficient to make "equal rights" ladies protest against an invasion of their territory, but when one sees blue VELVET bands round said head-coverings, blue collars on the coats, and even blue Tuxedo suits gracing informal gatherings there is indignation indeed!

The hats, to be really de rigueur, must have fairly high crowns and straight around brims; the overcoats stop either at the bend of the knee or six or eight inches below it. For ladies' tailors have decided that no smartly gowned feminine will now wear a coat of greater length than that and no mere man must make the former look ridiculous by walking with her when attired in a full length raglan.

The man who absolutely refuses to go about in a continual state of blues may wear a grey rough overcoat instead, but it must have sloping shoulders, narrow, turn-back cuffs, a buttoned belt and all the accessories.

that go to make up the usual college boy's regalia.

Because Mladys' hat is oval crowned so must be her escort's derby and there never was a more apt illustration of the claim that "he who laughs last grins with delight." For two seasons mankind in America has been poking fun at the headgear which came down over the ears of their women relations and friends; this winter that man is an oddity who does not peer out, and up from, his hat brim like a mouse under a sister. Little brother wears big brother's hat and the latter orders one two sizes too large for his cranium.

Suits for day wear are cut semi-military, with sloping shoulder seams—a la kimono; have collars that are cut in one rounded piece, sans the notch, and demi-cuffs, plus one bone button. The length of the coat is according to the temerity of its wearer. The really English looking outfit appears to have been left in the past.

Men who don't care a continental about the conspicuousness of being "the first to wear the new" are appearing in the "lapel-less" coat, in imitation of the same sort for women, while the really swagger men folks are trying not to look conscious of their stripes—and succeeding about as well as an escaped convict. These stripes run up and down nearly every black, blue, or brown suit and range from the narrowest pin stripes to a vertical band, so broad that time was when a negro minstrel would have hesitated to walk "down stage" thus arrayed.

Black and white seems to have the masculine fancy for the moment. Such suits may be worn in the morning with a dark crimson English square; in the afternoon with a pearl grey tie and at night—when one does not care to "dress" with a light waistcoat (of the high-button variety) and look equally appropriate to the occasion.

Wearing a blue hat, blue overcoat and a blue suit the average man looks as if he needed only blue shoes to complete the ensemble. And rumor has it that the bootmakers resent this harvest by all the other branches of "the trade" and threaten to introduce some startling novelties of their own.

As it is, the yellow shoes and champagne gloves of orange hue, quite capable of the great effort of the will, are the only accessories left.

She is left wondering whether the "mean old things" won't eventually take back all their borrowed finery in which she has been masquerading for so many generations. For, be it recalled, lace ruffles, lace handkerchiefs, brocaded velvet and satin coats, fur mantles, embroidered waistcoats, jeweled chains and "clocked" stockings were all originally the exclusive property of the genus man.

most popular with women. In these two divisions of the Government have, from time to time, been housed some of its best known female geniuses.

For years the Dead Letter Office held prestige through the presence there of Mrs. Pattie Lyle Collins, known as the "Blind Reader," though she is not blind herself. She can read any sort of an almost indecipherable address on an envelope. Fame has palled on her long since. Like Omar she would probably prefer to "take the Cash and let the Credit go."

No amount of training by Government officials, or even by the lady herself, could fit anyone else to fill the office. It is a peculiar mental gift to be able to know that the writer who put down "Smith street" meant to make it "Brown avenue," or that the emigrant who addresses part of an envelope in English and the remainder in his native language is not crazy, but thinks that what is readable to him surely must be to the great American authorities.

Before Mrs. Collins' advent such epistles were regarded as the ravings of lunatics and few were the successful attempts at re-addressing them. She has been with the Postoffice Department for many years and yet reof other food impurities, or properties, and devoted herself exclusively to finding out just how she could find out what foreign substances had been permitted to delude the Old Gentleman when he purchased "the making" of a vast cup of tea for his family.

Dr. Read succeeded and now has the honor of being alluded to by a Washington official as "the only woman in the Government Service who ever discovered anything of real economic value." She is the holder of four degrees, is an expert micro-analyst and was graduated from Cornell, where she was an instructor of histology until coming to Washington half a dozen years ago.
